

But the Greatest of These is Charity.

One of the most remarkable and conspicuous traits in the character of our late lamented Chief Magistrate, was the unflinching charity which he ever exercised towards restless and fault-finding supporters as well as towards his bitterest enemies. In all his speeches, proclamations, and public addresses, no trace, or allusion can be found that betrays the faintest desire of revenge or retaliation on his part. For mildness of temper he surpassed the benevolent and serene Father of his Country; the immortal Washington himself. No man ever had so many excuses for exhibitions of anger, as Mr. Lincoln. No man ever had his patience so tried. No ruler was ever surrounded by such adverse and trying circumstances. After being compelled to seek the capital of the nation in disguise in order to escape the assassin's knife, he finds one half the territory under a hostile and usurping government, and the flag of revolution flapping defiantly within sight of the White House. Added to the hosts of rebels in front of him, was a powerful organization of rebel sympathizers in the rear, who were more dangerous because more unscrupulous and dishonest. And yet through all these trying tribulations in dealing with open and secret foes, no word of anger or spite, or revenge ever escaped his lips. Washington's anger occasionally burst forth like the summer thunder, and while Jefferson was at times mean and vindictive, Abraham Lincoln kept his self-poisoned passions, and under the most trying circumstances, wrote no sentence that, dying, he would wish erased. Power and play took away none of his kindness of heart. That charity that sufferech long and is kind, which proveth not, and which is not puffed up, was his to the last. His example in this respect, ought not to be lost upon the American people; and we believe it will not be.

Then and Now.

The "La Crosse Democrat" is known (wherever it is known at all) to be one of the most violent and unscrupulous newspapers that have done as much since the rebellion broke out, to make the democratic party the unpopular thing that it is. Take the following specimens from its columns: "We see that our town's widow-maker, first applied by us to Mr. Lincoln, is running like wild fire all over the country. Years ago, Lincoln Abel is forgotten, the widow-maker will be remembered with the curses of millions."—La Crosse Democrat, July 27th, 1864. "Who can calmly look back upon the destruction he has caused and not blush to think so vile a thing as Abel Lincoln has been allowed to dupe and tyrannize so long over men that once feared nothing, but now quail with fear from under the heel of tyranny."—La Crosse Democrat, Oct. 18th, 1864. "For years, laws and constitutions, sacred rights and guarantees have been trampled under foot by Abraham Lincoln, the tyrant, butcher, usurer, constitution breaker, and equal traitor with Jeff. Davis."—La Crosse Democrat, Oct. 10th, 1864. Last week this Janesville traitor and calumniator, defamed the honored dead with his meaningless praise by publishing the following in his vile sheet: "Millions of sorrowing women have praised the kindness of the lamented Lincoln—millions of men in the north have thanked God for giving him a kind and heart—millions have blessed his late and noble son, and now let millions who have mourned his terrible death prove their sorrow by honoring his precepts, and example, and by doing as kindly by the now President as the late President did by the nation." One is at a loss which to despise the more heartily—the unmitigated liar of 1864, or the hollow-hearted hypocrite of 1865.

Beecher on Lincoln.

Last Sunday, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher preached a sermon on the death of President Lincoln, from the 4th and 5th verses of the 34th chapter of Deut., in which he proved that the assassination of President Lincoln was but the expiring blow of the rebellion; that it was aimed at the life of the Government and the nation; that it had signally failed, and that Abraham Lincoln, though dead, had been obeyed by the event with new influence. The following is Mr. Beecher's peroration: "And now the martyr is moving in triumphal march, mightier than when alive. The nation rises up at every stage of his coming. Cities and States are his palbearers, and the cannon speaks the hours with solemn progression. Dead, dead, dead, he yet speaketh. Is Washington dead? Is Hampton dead? Is Davis dead? Is any man that was ever fit to live dead? Disembodied of flesh, risen to the unobstructed sphere where passion never comes, he begins his limitless work. His life is now graded upon the infinite, and will be fruitful as no earthly life can. Pass on, thou that hast overcome. Your sorrow, O people, are his tears; your bells and bands and muffled drums sound triumph in his ears. Wait and weep here; God makes it joy and triumph here. Pass on! Four years ago, Oh Illinois, we to you from this midst an untamed man, and from among the people we return him to you a mighty conqueror. Not time any more but the nation's; not ours but the world's. Give him place on the prairies. In the midst of this great convulsion his dust shall rest, a sacred treasure to be kindled anew their light and nation. Ye people, behold, when the martyr's mighty places of the West, when his requiem, Ye people, behold, when the martyr's blood, as so many articulate words, pleads for fidelity, for law, for liberty!"

Incidents of Lee's Surrender.

A correspondent writes as follows: The articles of surrender were signed in the house of Wilmer McLean, and it is a fact worthy of note that the same individual owns Bull Run, where the first battle was fought, and was a refugee here; thus have his chickens come home to roost. The table upon which this important document was signed, General Sheridan paid $200 in gold, and then presented it to General Grant, who then presented it to the table, and Colonel Canby the one occupied by General Grant. Before twenty-four hours I doubt if there is much of the house left—such a penchant have Americans for trophies. General Sheridan has the inkstand used on the occasion.

THE CAPTURE OF RALEIGH.

Surrender of the City—Hanging of Rebel—Glorious News—Johnston's Army—Raleigh.

REBELS. THE NEWS OF SHERIDAN'S ARMY, Raleigh, April 14.

To-day, the anniversary of the capture of Fort Sumter, the right wing of Sherman's army made its triumphant march into the capital of North Carolina, to the intense delight of a goodly number of loyal citizens, who never favored secession and who would have gladly sought refuge under the folds of the old flag, if they could have done so with safety to themselves and families.

SURRENDER OF THE CITY.

Two days ago a committee of gentlemen proceeded to Gen. Sherman's headquarters at Clayton Station, on the Goldsboro railroad, and surrendered the city. They were ex-Governors L. Swain and William A. Graham, with Dr. Warren, Surgeon General of the State, and Gov. Sherman received the committee very kindly, and promising to afford every protection to citizens and their property.

OCCUPATION BY KILPATRICK.

Yesterday morning, at about nine o'clock, Kilpatrick's cavalry entered the city, and were soon after followed by the 14th division of the 14th corps, commanded by Gen. C. Walcutt. A protest guard was immediately placed at every house to prevent strangers from molesting the citizens, who have since remarked to me that there has been more quiet and order since the advent of our troops than there was when Johnston's command were here.

WHEELER'S MEN.

have treated the people shamefully, breaking into houses, and stores, and robbing everybody—friend and foe alike. The people all through the country, as well as those in this town, represent them as acting more like a band of robbers than an organized body of troops.

HANGING A REBEL.

After the city had been formally surrendered, and while Kilpatrick was marching through the town, an officer belonging to Wheeler's command, who, with some of his men, was engaged in plundering a store near the Market House, rushed into the street and fired a revolver at Kilpatrick, who was riding at the head of the column; the ball fortunately missed Kilpatrick, but wounded one of his staff. Chase was instantly made, and the ruffian captured. In less than ten minutes, he was swinging by his neck from a tree.

THE MARCH FROM GOLDSBORO.

was a very severe one in consequence of the rain and naturally bad roads over which the army was obliged to pass.

The pioneer corps and large details from different regiments were worked day and night, carrying up the roads for nearly half the distance.

The 15th and 17th corps, commanded respectively by Gen. Blair and Logan, and which are commonly known as the west wing of the army of the Tennessee, under Gen. Howard, took the extreme right on the march to Raleigh, which, in consequence of the circuitous route traveled, amounted to nearly sixty-four miles.

This march was accomplished in three days and a half, an almost incredible short time, when it is taken into consideration that the roads had to be made for full one-half the distance, amid a drenching rain storm which to any ordinary army would have made the roads impassable; but Sherman's veteran and victorious troops have learned how to overcome all every obstacle to success and they accordingly accomplished this march in the shortest time stated. I venture the opinion that the same march could not have been made in the same time by any other army in the world.

With the exception of some slight cavalry skirmishing this wing of the army had no enemy to contend with or to impede their progress since they left Goldsboro.

GLORIOUS NEWS.

While waiting at Lowell Factory for the repairing of the roads toward Smithfield, the glorious news of the surrender of Lee's army was officially communicated to the command, and produced the wildest excitement.

The fourth division of the 15th corps were summoned together by their gallant commander, Major General John M. Corse, and, after the playing of several national and patriotic airs by the band, the whole command joined in singing "John Brown," and the "Star Spangled Banner," with a zeal that has seldom been equaled, and never excelled.

After this grand jubilee was over the bugle sounded the assembly, and the men fell into the ranks and marched forward with the utmost spirit and enthusiasm. On Wednesday night the 15th corps, after crossing the Neuse river at Watson bridge, encamped for the night, and the next day moved forward to within a short distance of Raleigh. The 15th corps in the meantime advanced on the east side of the Neuse river, by Eagle Rock, crossing at Hinton's Bridge, and marching to within five miles of Raleigh, into which place they made their triumphant entry to-day at about 10 o'clock and were reviewed together with the 17th corps, by Major Gen. Sherman and Major General Howard, and their respective Staffs, in front of the State House or Capitol buildings.

Gen. Sherman and Howard took their position on the south side of the capital building and immediately in front of the bronze Statue of Washington.

The different divisions composing the Army of the Tennessee marched "by column of companies right in front," bands playing, drums beating and colors flying, and presented a most imposing spectacle, with their tattered and ragged battle-flags which they had heroically carried on battle-fields far too numerous to mention.

What a grand and glorious spectacle to witness! In eight hours and a half one continuous, almost never ceasing flow of men, and such men as are seldom seen in any army in the world. Strong, stout, athletic veterans, who have stood the shock of battle, and come out proud victors on numerous battle-fields, from Fort Donelson, Tennessee, to Raleigh, N. C., their deeds had never to be forgotten heroes who sleep in the soldiers' graves, on many well-fought battle-fields, strewn the line of march, and bear undying testimony to their valor and devotion to the cause in which they all embarked. God bless them! May their memories ever be green in the hearts of their countrymen!

CAPTIVES.

Some forty-six railroad cars and several engines were captured by Kilpatrick's cavalry, together with several thousand prisoners, some of whom have voluntarily come inside our lines and given themselves up after becoming convinced of the utter hopelessness of their cause.

JOHNSTON'S ARMY.

which retreated the day before our advance arrived here, is known to number from 20,000 to 25,000 men. Some of his command returned through Hillsboro to Greensboro, but the main portion of his army is known to be camped this side of Greensboro, which is the junction of the Raleigh and Richmond railroads, at which place Jeff Davis is known to be.

IT IS EXPECTED THAT SHERIDAN'S, STONE-

man's and Kilpatrick's cavalry will form a junction some time within the next five days, and hold Johnston in check until this army can come up with him and deliver the final blow to the rebellion which has for nearly four years cursed this fair land. The citizens here all express a desire, now that Lee has surrendered his army, that Johnston will do the same thing, and put an end to this desolating war. It is questionable whether or not he has heard as sense sufficient to take this view of the subject.

RALEIGH.

The population now is about 5,000. There are quite a number of handsome residences and large stores; the latter, however, are closed and under strict guard, to prevent their being broken into. Business of all kinds is for the present suspended.

The prospect of peace and of an early march home produces much rejoicing among the old soldiers of the army. They will go in light marching order, the heavy army material such as ordnance stores, and all superfluous impediments, being sent by sea from Beaufort. But this is anticipated. No orders, of course, have yet been issued on the subject. The return of Col. Hitchcock, the bearer of dispatches to Washington, will be looked for with intense interest. Already officers and men are eager about their release from service in the army.

The weather is delightful, and all nature seems to sympathize in the general joy which pervades the army over the return of peace.

A Poem Recited by Mr. Lincoln.

To the Editors of the Evening Post:—Have been urged by several friends to send you the enclosed poem, written down by myself from Mr. Lincoln's lips, and allusion it may make to many of your readers, the events of the last week give it a new peculiar interest.

The circumstances under which this copy was written were these: I was with the President alone one evening in his room, during the time I was painting my large picture at the White House last year. He presently threw aside his pen and papers, and began to talk to me of Shakespeare. He sent little "Ted," his son, to the library, to get a copy of the plays, and then read to me several pages of his favorite passages, showing genuine appreciation of the great poet. Recalling upon a sadder strain, he laid the book aside, and leaning back in his chair, said:

"There is a poem which has been a great favorite with me for years, which was first shown to me when a young man by a friend, and which I afterward saw and read from a newspaper and learned by heart. I would," he continued, "give a great deal to know who wrote it, but I have never been able to ascertain."

Then half closing his eyes he repeated to me the lines which I inclose to you. Greatly pleased and interested, I told him I would like, if ever an opportunity occurred, to write them down from his lips. He said he would sometime try to give them to me. A few days afterward he asked me to accompany him to the temporary studio of Mr. Seay, the sculptor, who was making a bust of him for the Treasury Department. While he was sitting for the bust I was suddenly reminded of the poem, and said to him that then would be a good time to dictate it to me. He complied, and sitting on some books at his feet, as nearly as I can remember, I wrote the lines down, one by one, from his lips.

With great regard, very truly yours, F. B. CAMPBELL.

Oh, why should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud?

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud? Like a swift, falling meteor, he came and he went. A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave. He leaped from life to his rest in the grave.

The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade, He scattered around and together he laid; And the grass and the sedge and the reed and the high, Shall moulder to dust and together shall lie.

The infant a mother attended and loved; The mother that infant's affection who proved; The husband that mother and infant who blessed, All, all, all away to their dwellings of rest.

The band of the king that the empire hath kept; The crown of the monarch that the world has kept; The eyes of the sage and the heart of the brave, Are hidden and lost in the depths of the grave.

The peasant, whose lot was to sow and to reap; The farmer, who tilled with his plow up the steep; The soldier, who fought on the field of the dead, Have faded away like the grass that we tread.

So the multitude goes, like the flower or the weed That withers away to let others succeed; So the multitude comes, even those who behold, To repeat every tale that has often been told.

For we are the same that our fathers have been; We are the same that our fathers have seen; We drink the same stream and we view the same sun, And run the same course that our fathers have run.

The thoughts we are thinking our fathers would think; The death we are shrinking our fathers would shrink; To the same end we are going, and to the same end, Have faded away like the grass that we tread.

So the multitude goes, like the flower or the weed That withers away to let others succeed; So the multitude comes, even those who behold, To repeat every tale that has often been told.

They loved, but the story we cannot unfold; They earned, but the heart of the heavenly is cold; They grieved, but no wall from their slumbers will come; They joyed, but the tongue of their gladness is dumb.

They died, yet they died; we things that are now, They walk on the turf that lies over their brow, And make to the world a kind deed in return, Sweet the things that are met on their pilgrim's road.

Yes! hope and despondency, pleasure and pain, We mingle together in life and in rain; And the smile and the tear, and the throng and the dirge, Still follow each other like surge upon surge.

'Tis the work of an eye, 'tis the draught of a breath; From the bloom of an eye to the paleness of death, From the mirth of the merriment to the gloom of the end, Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?

Restoration of the Union.

We talk of reconstruction; restoration and the readmission of seceded States to the Union, and this loose habit of speech does no harm so long as we do not allow our ideas and acts to be hampered thereby. These phrases are inaccurate substitutes for a thought that cannot be expressed in a single word.

What we want is to put the Government machinery of the Southern States into loyal hands, and whatever we may hold as to State rights, the general Government must make sure of this, otherwise have the sacrifices of the war seen in vain. Nominal loyalty by the large majority of the Southern people have been disloyal. There are not enough men in the seceded States who have stood firm against the general defection to fill the State and local offices.

It follows that we must accept as citizens those who renew their loyalty to the Union, or we must govern the entire South by estrays and armies for an entire generation. Which will we do? All questions of reconstruction resolve themselves at last into this single one.

Under the wise foresight of the President the revival of the loyal State Governments has kept pace with the progress of our arms, and with the fall of the military power of the rebellion, all the States now controlled by disloyal Governors and Legislatures are put in a situation to undertake the same reconstruction work. Congress has provided no other mode, and the President's plan will be followed in all the States with the modifications adapted to the condition of things in each, perhaps with some general changes by his order.

All theories of reconstruction invented for the purpose of transforming a third of the States into territories or colonies, fall with the rebellion, as all sagacious men foresee, they must. They have fulfilled their task, and their inventors will be glad to have them forgotten.

We stand again on solid ground; the rebel is a citizen of the United States, to be forgiven and restored if he repents—be excluded from all the rights of citizenship if he continues obdurate—to be punished as a traitor if the public safety requires it. The rebel State is a State of the Union, to be recovered from disloyal and placed in loyal hands. This is the work we have been doing for four years, now almost accomplished.

And now that the needful fighting has been done, all problems for the future are of easy solution, unless we wilfully complicate them, for the narrow purposes of faction or party, or by obstinate adherence to crochety notions of policy. But of this there is little danger. The popular heart is sound, and the popular eye clear.

We have not fought our way out upon the firm highway to be cheated out of our object at last. The restoration of the Union is a simple and straightforward process, and it will be speedy and permanent. The heresy of secession perishes with the rebellion, and slavery ends with the war.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The Demonstrativeness of Affection.

How much more we might make of our family life, of our friendships, if every sacred thought of love blossomed into a deed! We are now speaking merely of personal caresses. These may or may not be the best language of affection. Many are endowed with a delicacy, a fastidiousness of physical organization, which shrinks away from too close and repelled and overpowered. But there are words and looks, and observances, thoughtfulness, watchful little attentions, which speak of love, which make it manifest, and there is scarcely a family that might not be richer in heart-wealth for more of them.

It is a mistake to suppose that relations must of course love each other because they are relations. Love must be cultivated, and can be increased by judicious culture as wild fruits may double their bearing under the hand of a gardener; and love can dwindle and die out by neglect as choice flower seeds planted in poor soil dwindle and grow scarce.

Two cases in our Anglo-Saxon nature present this easy faculty and flow of expression which strike one so pleasantly in the Italian or the French life: the dread of flattery, and a constitutional shyness. "I perfectly longed to tell Susan how I admired her, the other day," said Miss X.

"Then why in the world didn't you tell her?"

"Oh, it would seem like flattery, you know."

Flattery is insincere praise given from interested motives, but not the sincere utterance to a friend of what we deem good and lovely in him.

And so, for fear of flattery, these dread silent people go side by side with those they love and admire, giving them all the time the impression of utter indifference. Parents are so afraid of exciting pride and vanity in their children by the expression of their love and approbation, that a child sometimes goes sad and discouraged by their side, and learns with surprise in some chance way, that they are proud and fond of him. There are times when the open expression of a father's love would be worth more than church or sermon to a boy; and his father cannot utter it, he will not show it.

The other thing that represents the utterances of love is the characteristic shyness of the Anglo-Saxon blood. Ovidly enough a race born of two demonstrative, outspoken persons, the German and the French, has a habitual reserve that is like nothing else. There is a powerlessness of utterance in our blood that we should fight against and struggle outward toward expression. We can educate ourselves to it, if we know and feel the necessity; we can make it a Christian duty, not only to love, but to be loving—not only to be true friends, but to show ourselves friendly.

We can make ourselves say the kind things that rise in our hearts and tremble back on our lips—do the gentle and hopeful deeds which we long to do and shrink back from; and, little by little, it will grow easier—the love spoken will bring back the answer of love—the kind deed will bring back a kind deed in return. Till the heart in the family circle instead of being so many frozen, icy islands, shall be full of warm airs and echoing bird-voices answering back and forth with a constant melody of love.—Mrs. H. B. Stowe.

LATEST NEWS.—Peace! Peace! Peace!—Having just returned from the East, where the prices of goods are controlled by the gold market, and having purchased a large stock of ready-made clothing, cloths and gentlemen's furnishing goods, at the very lowest prices, I am prepared to sell them at lower figures than ever before offered in this State since the war commenced. I have made up my mind to leave this city, and persons desirous of purchasing ready-made clothing cannot do better than avail themselves of this great bargain, for I am bound to sell my entire stock. This is the greatest bargain you will have to get your goods at the lowest figures.

I will sell out my entire stock, and I will state, without fear of contradiction, that the reputation of the Young American Clothing House, is more widely known than any similar institution of the kind in the State. Any one wishing to purchase the entire stock cannot do better than to avail themselves of this chance.

SEWING-MACHINES.—Of the many inventions and improvements of sewing-machines, none have so satisfactorily stood the test of time and service as Grover & Baker's. They have taken the highest premiums at the recent State Fairs of fifteen States; they have, moreover, received the warmest encomiums from all persons who have ever used the machines, and those who have had opportunities to compare the different styles of machines, generally prefer Grover & Baker's to any other. They do the work neatly and well, do not get out of order, and are readily adapted to any kind of sewing. We would advise our lady readers, who are in want of a sewing-machine, to call at Grover & Baker's.—Brooklyn Standard.

Miscellaneous.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum known as the

SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

These Notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1893, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible at the option of the holder into

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold-Bearing Bonds

These bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent, making a 33 interest from Nov., which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, at current rates, including interest, about ten per cent. per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.	$100
Two cents " " " " " " " "	$200
Ten " " " " " " " "	$1,000
20 " " " " " " " "	$2,000
$1 " " " " " " " "	$10,000

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions. This is now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the Great Popular Loan of the People.

As soon as $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscription to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Banks throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

JAY COOKE, Subscription Agent, Philadelphia.

Subscribers will be received by the FIRST NATIONAL BANK of Janesville.

ROCK COUNTY NATIONAL BANK of Janesville.

THE NINTH NATIONAL BANK

OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

CAPITAL, $1,000,000, PAID IN.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.
COLGATE'S HONEY SOAP.
 This celebrated Toilet Soap, in such universal demand, is made from the choicest materials, is mild and excellent in its nature; fragrant, scented, and extremely beneficial in its action upon the skin. For sale by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers.
A SUPERIOR REMEDY.
 We can conscientiously recommend to those suffering from a distressing cough, Dr. Strickland's Molasses Cough Balsam. It gives relief almost instantaneous, and is withal so disagreeable to the taste. There is no doubt that the Molasses Cough Balsam is one of the best preparations now in use, and is all that its proprietors claim for it. We have tried it during the past week, and found relief from a most distressing cough. It is prepared by Dr. Strickland, No. 404 Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O., and is sold by Druggists at 25 cents per bottle.
